Getting Support: Psychosocial Cancer Resources

“I have cancer. Is there someone I can talk to?”

What are Psychosocial Cancer (Oncology) Services?

Cancer affects more than your body. It has an impact on your whole life. Many people with cancer find that talking with a professional health care counsellor can be very helpful. Doctors and nurses are the experts in treating cancer, but you are the expert in the way cancer affects your life. Counselling can help you to find strength and meaning. It can also help you cope, adjust, and find solutions to problems.

Psychosocial Cancer Services provide professional counselling and support for patients and their families. You can get counselling on your own or with members of your family. You can also get counselling in groups, either in-person or online.

The health care professionals who provide counselling and therapy include:

- Psychologists
- Nurses
- Psychiatrists
- Spiritual Care Counsellors
- Social Workers
- Cancer Patient Navigators

In Halifax, there is a psychosocial cancer team at the Nova Scotia Cancer Centre. The team provides counselling to anyone attending the QEII cancer programs.

If you are outside Halifax, check with your Cancer Patient Navigator, social worker, nurse, or doctor to find out about services in your district.

What are your questions? Please ask.
We are here to help you.
